REMY CATS

Remy is a self-taught director with an academic background in sports and physiotherapy. His passion for aesthetics and movement of the human body is reflected in his imagery.

He was inspired by his cousin to pick up a camera and create snowboarding videos. From that day on, Remy began to discover filmmaking on his own. A deep desire to portray his self-conceived world began to grow, driving him every day.

His work is driven by human stories, often expressed in evocative ways. His aim is to create a world in which a viewer can empathise, even if they are unfamiliar with the world they see. Therefore, he leaves room for personal interpretation, believing that when a viewer can empathise and connect an emotion to it, the experience will be unforgettable.

In addition to creating visuals, Remy places significant value on composing music. Music personally inspires Remy in his work.

While currently living in Rotterdam, Remy frequently seeks out waves to surf. The ocean is a place where he can live in the present moment.
